Helping Options At Northside

Helping is a fantastic way to meet people or to see what happens at a competition before you try it yourself. No specialist knowledge is needed to help build jump courses, pick up poles or read the draw list of entries as showjumping steward. You can learn a huge amount by pen-cilling for one of our knowledgeable and friendly dressage or showjumping judges. If you do have specialist knowledge or experience, helping is an opportunity to pass on that knowledge and put something back into the sport you love.

You can help for a day, half a day or as little as an hour. The most important thing is you commit in advance so the phase head can schedule you in. And of course you must turn up. We track cumulative helping hours in our database so we can recognise our top helpers and spread the helping load across all members
